

6516205839.txt

I live in the foothills of california and commute often to the SF bay area. XM radio allows me to check the road conditions before I leave because in my rural area I can only receive local and valley stations, and on the road the bay area stations are not accessible until I am committed to my route of travel. Please do not restrict my access to information about an extremely volatile commute route.